DARROW CASE GOES TO THE JURY TODAY

Prosecution Will End Plea After Which Long List of Instructions to Jurors Will Be Read—Verdict Tomorrow.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Los Angeles, Calif., August 16.—With the conclusion of the argument of District Attorney John Fredericks to the jury today in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow, under indictment for bribery of a McNamara juror, it was expected that Judge George W. Hutton would read his instructions to the jury and then that body would retire.

More than three hundred instructions to the jury were handed to the court by both the prosecution and the defense and while it was not expected that all of the instructions would be considered, it was learned that the court's instruction would be lengthy and that probably two hours would be consumed in the reading. The possibility of a verdict being returned tonight was being much commented upon but few, however, were of the opinion that it would be made before tomorrow.

MAKE PREPARATIONS FOR COMING TRIALS OF THE GRAFT RING

District Attorney in New York Ready to Bring Matters to An Issue Very Shortly.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, August 16.—District Attorney Whitman today hopefully awaited word from Methuen, Mass., regarding Harry Harowitz known as "Gip the Blood" and Lewis Rosenzweig, alias "Lefty Louie" the two much wanted gun men in the Rosenthal murder case. Four detectives have been sent to Methuen in quest of the gun men who sent a tell-tale post card to "Lefty" Webber.

Webber received the post card yesterday concealed in an envelope. The gambler tore up the envelope, the card read, "Dear Pal, do the best you can, we are all right." Signed your pals, L. & G. Webber turned the card over to Max Steurle, his attorney, saying that he was positive it was "Lefty Louie's" writing.

His cell was then combed for the bits of the envelope which after much trouble were reconstructed and showed that it was mailed from Methuen, Mass., on Wednesday night. District Attorney Whitman telephoned to Commissioner Dougherty who at once sent four detectives to Methuen.

It was reported that Harowitz has relatives in that city. Reward of $5,000 has been offered for the capture of the two gun men by Whitman, either dead or alive.

District Attorney Whitman said today he did not want to open the trial without Harowitz and Rosenzweig unless he had to. Governor Dix has been asked for an extra session of the supreme court and Justice Goss to preside. Justice Goss presided at the first trial of Rand Molinoux for the murder of Samuel Kennedy and Albert Patrick.

With District Attorney Whitman out of town for the week-end and the grand jury not in session interest in the Rosenthal murder and its score of police craft centered today in Gov. Dix's appointment of supreme court justice Goff to hear the case in extraordinary session beginning September 2nd.

Justice Goff's selection at this time comes before any of the indictments in the case have been returned. Becker alone having been indicted for murder—but the district attorney's staff regards the return of the true bill as a foregone conclusion. They will be handed up probably early next week after the testimony of Sam Schepps has been heard.

First to be placed on trial according to present plans are the gun men. Becker's trial will probably come last. John F. McIntyre, counsel for Becker, is in Baltimore today, but he has said that his client is ready to go before the bar at any time. Justice Goff is especially well qualified for a sympathetic understanding of cases involving police craft. He was counsel for the now famous Lexow committee which uncovered much crookedness in the department years ago and he has also been an assistant district attorney here. On the bench he presided in such well known cases as the Kennedy and Malineux trials, the Meyers poisoning case and the case of the notorious Sam Parks. He was elected to the supreme court in 1906 and is about 66 years old.

Judge Named.

Albany, Aug. 16.—At the request of the district attorney Whitman of New York Gov. Dix today designated Justice John W. Gaff to preside at the extraordinary term of the supreme court to be held in New York September 2, "for a speedy and vigorous prosecution of indictments which may be found" as a result of the Rosenthal murder.

Schepps on Way Back.

Indianapolis, Ind., August 16.—Assistant District Attorney J. P. Rubins and party taking Sam Schepps to New York as a material witness in the Rosenthal murder case, passed through this city early today. It was said that the party would stop in New York state before going into New York City next week. Attorney Rubins declined to say where.

The burglar in one case picked up an infant and dashed it against the wall to torture the mother into revealing the hiding place of her money. FAILED TO PASS THE BILL OVER VETO BY A VERY CLOSE VOTE

La Follette Refused to Vote Aid to the Insurgents in Proposition in Senate.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 16.—An attempt to pass the steel tariff revision bill over the president's veto, led by Senator Simmons, was lost today, 39 to 32. The house had passed it over Mr. Taft's disapproval.

The democrats received no support from the progressive republicans, Senators Chapp, Works, Poindeston, and La Follette withholding their votes.

Senator La Follette explained that he had not been present when the bill was passed and was not familiar with its provisions. Senator La Follette then moved to pass the wool tariff bill over the president's veto.

Congress is uneasy over the situation created by President Taft's veto of the legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill. The house failing to pass the measure over the president's veto yesterday is preparing to drop the civil service 7 year provision and again force the president to pass on the abolishment of the commerce court.

A canvass of the senate was begun today to develop the attitude of the majority of that body. While a bill to abolish the commerce court probably will be approved by the senate, members of that body dislike to again attach the provision to an appropriation bill and call another veto which might prolong the session.

Both houses are being canvassed to find out whether the bill could be passed over a veto if it contained only the commerce court provision. Attempts are being made to dispose of business so that adjournment may be reached next Thursday but the appropriation bills are a stumbling block.

The conference over the postal bill began today, but the general deficiency bill has not yet been taken up in the senate and the army bill has not entered conference. The sundry civil, Indian and naval bills are still in conference.

The conference report on the Panama canal bill containing the provisions against trust owned ships and granting free toll to certain American vessels was adopted by the senate today 45 to 18 after a futile fight against it led by Senator Brandegee, chairman of the Panama canal committee.

President Taft expects to sign the one hundred and sixty million dollar pension appropriation bill today and thousands of veterans and their dependents who have been practically without their usual government aid for many weeks, will cash their checks.

As soon as the president signs the bill the sub-treasury will be ordered by wire to at once honor the drafts of the eighteen outlying pension agencies which by the provision of the law which so long delayed its passage will go out of existence Jan. 31, 1913.

After that date the pension bureau in Washington will mail checks direct.

MRS. KATE EDWARDS MAY REGAIN FREEDOM

Liberty Now Believed to be in Sight for Murderess Whom Three Governors Refused to Execute.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Reading, Pa., Aug. 16.—Freedom is believed to be in sight for Mrs. Kate Edwards, the most remarkable woman prisoner in the United States. For eleven years the woman has been confined in the Berks county jail under sentence of death. Once a gallows was erected where she could see it from her window. Then came a reprieve, which reached the jail while a minister was administering the last rites to the condemned woman. Since that time three governors of Pennsylvania have declined to sign the death warrant, and now her case is to be brought before the board of pardons with the probable result, it is believed, that she will be given her freedom.

Mrs. Edwards and a negro named Gleason were arrested for the murder of the woman's husband. The negro was a paramour of the woman and the husband declared he would kill her. In fear of her life, Mrs. Edwards killed her husband one night and threw his body into a well. On a second trial Gleason was acquitted, but the woman was convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

Mrs. Edwards came to prison vicious to the last degree; a drunkard, unkempt, desperate and intractable. She was like a wild beast. Good women and patient ministers worked years to reform her. The success of their efforts have been nothing less than marvelous. Today the woman possesses a very fair education, is an adept at needle work, extremely neat in her personal appearance and deeply religious in her nature.

What Our Great Twentieth Century American Stores and Business Methods Mean To You

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia.

When Selfridge, the big Chicago merchant, planned his commercial invasion of England, the merchants of London had one good hearty laugh. There was evidently no limit to the nerve of these blooming Americans.

Then, like a man who has set himself gracefully to catch a little pop fly, and finds his baseball suddenly converted in dynamics to the velocity and the violence of a cannonball, their laughter froze into consternation and they were bowled over before they were hit.

The General Manager and the Advertising Manager of the largest London Store came galloping across the water on the biggest, fastest greyhound to find out where they were at.

On his visit to the writer, the Advertising Manager of this London concern came straight to the point.

"What is it you American stores have," he asked "that we English stores do not have?"

"Our American stores," he was told, "have unlimited merchandise, unlimited service and unlimited publicity. The only thing in which your English stores are perfectly frank with the public is concerning the amount of business you do. And that is the only thing we American stores keep to ourselves. You represent the producer; we represent the consumer. You adapt your customers to your methods; we adapt our methods to our customers. You command and we serve."

It may be interesting to know that Mr. Selfridge had been in London but a very short time, when he was offered a cool million dollars profit to put on his hat and go home.

When you stop to consider that the American situation is so thoroughly in the hands of the consumer, (you can send your child with perfect safety into nearly any reputable store to do all your buying for you), you can readily see how far our business methods have progressed.

You read over the advertising in this paper just as you read the other pages of news. You accept it with perfect assurance because you know that every store is pledged to the returnability of all merchandise and that no store would be foolish enough to make statements it could not live up to.

You buy with that same assurance because you know that the store is not your enemy but your personal representative and that anything you take, you can also take back if you are not pleased.

You enjoy a thousand privileges that are utterly unknown to the men and women of any other country in the world. And for all of these privileges you are beholden first of all to the great advertising and publicity plans which American business methods have built up.

If you only realized how much this advertising has meant to you, you would no more buy an unadvertised article or from an unadvertised store, than you would revert to the schoolboy method of trading pocketknives "unsight 'n unseen."

LA FOLLETTE AGAIN SCORES ROOSEVELT

Wisconsin Editorial Today Reviews Acceptance Speeches with Especial Attack on Bull Moose.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 16.—The Taft, Wilson and Roosevelt acceptance speeches receive exhaustive analysis from the La Follette point of view in the senator's weekly today. Praise for Governor Wilson's stand on some issues is offset by criticism of other issues.

Referring to the democratic candidate, he says: "Restraint and understatement characterize and in a degree weaken his presentation of the issues. He frankly announces, and this doubtless required courage, that he believes in the principle of tariff for revenue. But while he defines his policy on the tariff, as revision downward, steadily downward, he cautions against revision in a way to violently disturb the business of the country. His tariff plan evidently conforms with that of the Democratic house, which, with the balance of power in the hands of progressive Republicans, might result in safe and wise reductions schedule by schedule. Governor Wilson's statement of conditions shows an appreciation of their magnitude."

President Taft's speech is described by the senator as an appeal to the conservative vote of the country, and says it will please those whom it was intended to please—those who deprecate disturbance in business conditions.

The Oyster Bay candidate gets another grilling from the senator. The editorial reads in part: "He (Roosevelt) is forcible, definite, and positive on matters about which there can be no dispute. He asserts, with the enthusiasm of an original discoverer, principles advocated by Republican progressive years ago when conservation was the only progressive policy which Roosevelt favored. To those who have been in the struggle for representative government and for direct nominations as a means to that end for fifteen of twenty years, his discussion of these subjects, as though they were new issues, is really comic."

Roosevelt's silence on the question of overcapitalization of railroads and industrial combinations is credited to friendship for Perkins McCormick and their associates, whose financial backing, it is declared, he does not desire to forfeit. "This is a millstone about Roosevelt's neck," continued the editorial, "and of itself makes him impossible as candidate of a real progressive movement. It forces him into a tortuous and shifty course of reasoning upon the high cost of living."

BATTLE OF BENNINGTON REMEMBERED IN VERMONT.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 16.—In accordance with custom Vermont today observed the 135th anniversary of the battle of Bennington as a legal holiday. Flags were raised at many points, and as a rule the banks and all public offices remained closed. The battle of Bennington, though comparatively small as regards the number of its participants, was one of the most important conflicts of the Revolution so far as results are concerned. The battle is generally recognized by historians as the turning point of the war. It was the first time in history that raw militia had contended successfully against entrenched regular troops. It made the victory of Saratoga possible, which in turn encouraged France to recognize the independence of the American colonies.

GRAY-ROBINSON CO. SUBMITS LOWEST BID

Manitowoc Firm Successful Bidder for New Sewer Construction—Figure Submitted $4504.06.

Gray-Robinson Construction Company of Manitowoc submitted the lowest bid yesterday for the sewer work to be done in Jamesville this season, their figure being $4504.06. The next lowest bid was that of P. E. Kaminski of Watertown, which was $4737.35. The other bids submitted were: Multhead and Kuehn Co., Kankana, $4920.65; Johnson & Thompson, Racine, $5019.59; Sweeney Brothers, Reedsburg, $4966.94; and Tibey Brothers, Dubuque, $6323.50. The contractors made separate bids for the work in each district, but on the condition that no contractor would accept the work in one district if he did not get in the rest. The bids are slightly higher than the city has been securing in previous years, but as low as can be expected with the present high price of labor and the comparatively small size of the job. The successful bidder has not done sewer work in Jamesville before, but Mr. Gray of the firm was interested in the construction of the waterworks in this city. The successful bidder's estimate for each district were as follows: No. 3—$1481.70; No. 4—$573.56; No. 5—$238.86; No. 14—$154.75; No. 16—$1955.13.

FOUR MORE DRUNKS METED PUNISHMENT

"Eddie" Ryan Gets Ten Days in Jail With Fine or Extra Term—Higgins Changes Plea to Guilty.

"Repeaters" are in high favor at the municipal court and two-story sentences are being made out to them. "Eddie" Ryan, who for three months has kept out of court was brought up again this morning on the charge of intoxication. Complaints have also reached the police of his provoking fights. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ten days in jail and a fine of $10 and costs or eleven days additional.

Patrick Higgins of Footville at first indignantly denied that he had been intoxicated, said that he had not spoken a word to anyone, and was inoffensively taking his ease on the city lot opposite the city hall. Later he changed his plea to "guilty," after fully admitting to make the judge state what the penalty would be if he did so. He was sent to jail in default of a fine of $3 and costs.

Frank Nelson, from north of Nelson, Luther Kraatz, a Johnston farm hand, each got six days not having money for their fines of $3 and costs. Nelson was hopeful that his friends would come to his relief.

George Decker has also purchased third ward property on Court street between Garfield and Clarence avenues. Peter J. Myers bought the property owned by George McKee, on Oakland avenue, and Charles Pierce bought the Stone property on Jackson street and will occupy the property this fall. Property is moving very rapidly, according to real estate men, and builders expect a lull autumn with new houses, if an open season prevails.

Fitchitt, of 735 Milton avenue has one hundred and seventy of the known and named varieties of bulbs in bloom and a hundred and fifty varieties of rare plants some not even yet named, mere seedlings, which are being experimented with and cultured to bring forth the best results. The sight of these wonderful blooms is attracting many visitors to his garden and the appointments with the outside purchasers are being made for future dates when all the parts will be at the zenith of their glory. Some of the bulbs Mr. Fitchitt has imported from Europe and they are being grown in America for the first time and one plant he has cultured himself but not yet named. THINKS JAMESVILLE HAS MADE PHENOMINAL GROWTH

C. M. Baldwin of Chicago Finds Big Improvement in City Which He Left Thirty Years Ago.

Jamesville may well be proud of her growth and enterprise. This is the verdict of C. M. Baldwin, general yardmaster of the Northwestern road at Chicago, who is the guest of his uncle, B. E. Baldwin, of this city. This is Mr. Baldwin's first visit to Jamesville for any length of time since he left here thirty years ago. In a drive about the city yesterday he was impressed with the pronounced changes and with the general air of prosperity which he noted in both the business and residence districts. Mr. Baldwin is a son of S. A. Baldwin, former agent of the Northwestern road in this city.

SECRETARY JAMES WILSON SEVENTY-SEVEN YEARS OLD.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—Secretary James Wilson, head of the Department of Agriculture, reached his seventy-seventh birthday anniversary today. Time has dealt leniently with the secretary, who appears as "as vigorous as the average man of fifty." No other executive officer in the Government service in Washington has anything on "Farmer Jim" when it comes to putting in a full day of eight or ten hours at the desk. Mr. Wilson is a native of Scotland, which fact, so his friends laughingly assert, accounts for his ability to hold his job longer than any other cabinet officer in the history of the country. He was appointed Secretary of Agriculture by President McKinley in 1897 and has served continuously ever since.

Prizes of considerable value are offered for the best results attained in aiming and firing from airplanes and aeroplanes and in taking photographs from flying machines.

Truthful Advertising.

A strong movement is on foot to make advertising truthful, one of the startling results being that a merchant offers "cracked good patent leather shoes at three dollars a pair." —Toronto Mail and Empire.

Leading exponents of the archery game are gathered in Boston to participate in the thirty-fourth annual tournament of the National Archery association of the United States. A feature of the tournament will be the meeting of the Rev. W. B. Gray, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Dr. E. F. Weston, of Chicago. Both competed in the first tournament of the association in 1879.

Three months of racing under Jockey club control will begin at the new track of the Hartford county fair association, below Havre de Grace, Md., August 24. Originally it was arranged to have the meeting open two days later.

Edwin R. Bushnell, an American athletic authority explains athletic superiority of this country as follows in the London Times:

"The position which American enjoys is the result of scientific coaching. We frankly admit that for our superiority in distance running we used England as our model."

"The most important factor is our strength for 1916 will be in the result of the enthusiasm created by the 1912 performers. Every schoolboy in the country with athletic ambitions will wish to represent America four years hence. This is only natural."

"If there were similar enthusiasm in England, coupled with the adoption of a system of coaching, there would be no occasion for the general lament over the results of your 1912 performance."

The ambition of the Naps now is to finish fourth in the American league. They are six now, but recent victories set things buzzing.

Lefty Russell, Cole Mack's $11,000 lemon, who was leased to Atlanta and then fired, failed to win against a village team in Virginia. Shenandoah and Westport, Va., are hot baseball rivals. Woodstock has been winning regularly this season. Shenandoah hired Isell and pitched him under an assumed name. Everybody in Shenandoah was on and they bet money like mad. Russell gave his supporters a thrill. The start, but soon petered out. Isell fanned two batters and another pined out in the first inning. The hammered Lefty for 15 hits and 9 runs. Shenandoah got five runs.

The embryonic baseball players union is as progressive as a central labor union. It demands a minimum wage scale of $2,000. They figure that if a player is worth $15,000, no other player should receive less than $2,000. They figure that if a player is not worth that, he is not worth carrying on the league. Many young players draw less than $2,000. It costs much more to live in big league towns than in smaller cities, they say, but many do better in the long run; the American association or in the international league.

HERE IS A STRIKING EXAMPLE OF AMERICA'S "ALL-AROUND" ATHLETES

Clement C. Cook.

Sportsmen point to Clement C. Cook of the Cleveland Athletic club as a beautiful specimen of the all-around athlete. He is one of the few who hold up in answer to the English charge that American athletes do not develop general physique but only unusual ability in some single line of sport. Notice in the picture, taken in pose for a sprint, the admirable physical lines of the man. He can do a little of everything and is mighty good at several things, too, although he was disqualified in the semi-finals for the Olympic games.

JACK O'LEARY DIES WHILE GOING HOME

Former Idol of Milwaukee Boxing Fans, Who Boxed Here Several Times, White Plague Victim.

A victim of the great white plague, Jack O'Leary, idol of Milwaukee boxing fans a few years ago, died yesterday in an effort to reach Milwaukee before the end. O'Leary had been in Arizona, struggling with the same gameness that characterized his work in the padded ring, against his last foe, tuberculosis. O'Leary has boxed here several times and always made a good showing.

Unwilling to give up, O'Leary was persuaded at the last moment to return home, his advisers knowing that the end was not far off, but he was counted out before home was reached, succumbing on the train.

Born Dec. 25, 1885, on the south side, O'Leary spent most of his days in Milwaukee. He showed great promise as a young boxer, and it was not long before he became the idol of the local boxing fans. Gradually he worked his way to the top by his cleverness and hard punch. As he neared the pinnacle of fame, Andy Bezenach, looked upon as a second-rate, beat him twice, and O'Leary started to slide. Then, on the end came rapidly. Heart-broken over his defeat by a man acknowledged to be his inferior in almost every department, he began to lose his health and was soon in the grip of tuberculosis, the finale to a once promising career coming yesterday.

Although practically forgotten by the public that at one time heaped honors on the game little fellow's head, the memory of Jack O'Leary, through his gameness and cleverness, will ever remain green in the memory of Milwaukee's old boxing fans.

The Kaiser's Joke.

During the German maneuvers recently a company of dragons was told off to represent a convoy of wagons. The Kaiser, riding over the field of battle and seeing a dragon lying on the ground, said to him:

"Well, what are you lying down there for?" "I am representing a wagon, your majesty," replied the soldier. "Are you?" said the Kaiser. "Well, get up and go and join the others!" "That is impossible, your majesty," said the soldier, "because I have lost one of my wheels." The emperor burst out laughing and, giving the man two shillings, observed, "Here's something for you to get the other wheels oiled with."—Paris Matin.

PLAIN POLITICS.

While there is a sentiment throughout the state that there will be a number of split tickets on both the democratic and republican side of the fence this year it is probable that it is more talk than anything else. Election day is still several months away and much will be accomplished between now and November. However, the fact remains, that care must be taken in Wisconsin to select men to the state legislature that will honestly represent the wishes of the people as a whole. During the past few years there has been much radical legislation enacted and placed on the statute books, that needs revision, if not being entirely repealed. The era of reform has now reached the stage where it is costing the wage-earners, the farmers and not the manufacturers and capitalists. When reform hits the average pocketbook a revision is demanded and usually follows. Blinded by the cry of the opponents of the income tax and other laws, many voters are planning to go to the primaries and vote for democrats who stand for the repeal of the laws obnoxious, regardless of the fact that without a legislature a governor would be powerless to do anything for the relief of the masses. It is the members of the legislature that may accomplish this, and the republican party presents for the consideration of the voters three men for state senate, three candidates in each of the two assembly districts of the county for the consideration of the voters. That these men stand for they are defining in their campaign documents. The people should choose, and select carefully who they should send to Madison next winter. It is up to the voters to make their selection, but if they wish reform of present conditions they should go to the republican primaries and vote for the men who are pledged to this cause. They will avail themselves nothing by voting for a democratic candidate for governor even if he does stand for repeal of the income tax, if the legislature chosen is favorable to such a measure. It is a case of plain, practical politics that the reform must come from the legislature and consequently it is the legislature that should be watched most closely. Wisconsin is a republican state and it is safe to say that the republican nominees will be elected, so the September primaries really mean as much as the election itself. Be sure you understand what the candidates stand for before voting for them and then you will safeguard your own interests.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

The present commission has a rare opportunity of placing Janesville on the civic map of the state as one of the best governed cities in Wisconsin. This can not be done by closing their eyes to violations of the city ordinances, but by strict enforcement and by the passage of others, if needed, to raise the standards of the morals of the community. They will find that the citizens are behind them in this movement; that men of prominence in all walks of life, want a bigger and better Janesville and are willing to give their support to this cause. The commission was confronted with many difficulties at the start in the way of finances and other impediments to handling city affairs, but these they have overcome, and if they will now give their undivided attention to the morals of the community they will find just as many difficulties to overcome but much easier to accomplish if set about in the right way. The citizens have confidence in the integrity of the men at the head of the public affairs and will back them to the limit if given an opportunity or should the occasion arise. All they ask is concerted action in stopping some of the most flagrant abuses of law and ordinances on the part of an element that do not need protection and whose continual defiance of the law is a menace to the community.

GOOD CHEER IN THE STOCK MARKET.

For special reasons the course of the stock market is a good omen, just now, of the future of business. The movement of prices and the tone of the New York exchange are alike significant of conditions which are far wider in their scope and effect than the ordinary ups and downs of speculation.

At present the only doubts about the business outlook in the country at large are of political origin. If the merchants, manufacturers and bankers of the United States were absolutely assured that the government would do nothing to upset business within the next year or two the promise of unusual prosperity would be brilliant. Then everything would indicate good times.

That Wall Street is optimistic and inclined to look for improvement rather than adverse changes in business, is shown by the course of the stock market. It is strong, with the political chances ahead taken fully into account. Current prices are equivalent to wagers that nothing will happen, however the coming election may go, which will interfere with the natural and sound development of the country.

This clears the skies for business because it shows that there is confidence instead of dismay where fear of the future is most likely to be found at a time when radical changes are possible in government policies and political conditions. Wall Street's satisfaction with the outlook is encouraging to a great number of business men who have nothing to do with stock speculation of any kind.

HICKS OF OSHKOSH.

Colonel John Hicks of Oshkosh, owner of the Northwestern, one of the leading livery papers of the state is making a memorial for himself in the hearts of the citizens of the former "Sawdust" city, by his public benefactions. He is a man who has traveled extensively and viewed the world with eyes always alert for the best there was. He has brought back to his home city many ideas from foreign shores and put them into practical operation. His public donations of statues, memorials and suggestions for public welfare, have been met with ready approval of the citizens and it is safe to say that Colonel Hicks of Oshkosh is well beloved and honored by his fellow citizens as but few men are during their lifetime. He is not only a good citizen, alive to the best interests of Oshkosh, but also a public benefactor. Would that more cities in the state had men of his calibre, who believe in doing good during their lifetime for the best interests of the community they live in.

If anyone doubts that Janesville has been placed on the race map of the horsemen of the country they should disabuse their minds of the opinion. The successful three days' gathering of fast horses at the Park association track is an evidence that the former glory of Janesville is about to return to its old home and the race meets will be an annual affair from now on.

The average man readily indorses every attempt to ascertain the cause of the high cost of living. But he regards any effort to find the causes of the high cost of his vacation an impertinence.

A Chicago judge has banished a man to Pittsburgh. It is his intention was to punish, he couldn't have done better unless he was willing to compel the culprit to remain in Chicago.

Another Da Vinci masterpiece has been found. Still, the artist that painted it probably left it where that result was reasonably to be expected.

The government dam in the Ohio river that went to pieces cost nearly $3,000,000. But how much will the official investigation cost?

Messrs. Wilson, Johnson and Marshall are in a position to arise and remark that this has been a great little year for governors.

For a thing with such an unwieldy name, the psychological moment has a most surprising facility for getting by unnoticed.

If It's Only a Small Thing.

It is an excellent thing for everybody to learn to do something well.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

Oh, R. E. Morse. I placed five bones upon A piebald nag. I got a straight tip from A stable wag. It turned out that my friend Had guessed it right. My gallant steed put up A wondrous fight. I pocketed my coin With keen delight.

Next heat my friend came to Me once again. The tip he handed me Was very plain. It looked even better than The one before. He was a learned man In racing lore. I bet my winnings and Ten dollars more.

I haven't seen my learned Friend since then. I lost my winnings and My extra ten. With spirit humbled and A mind contrite, And pride laid low by R. E. Morse's bite, I borrowed five cents to Ride home that night.

Paradise.

A hammock slung upon an Arctic flow; A group of icebergs sailing to and fro; And thou beside me pelting me with snow— If that ain't Paradise, I'd like to know! A jackey standing o'er me swatting flies From early morn until the daylight dies; Another through the night, to slap the skeet— Ah, that, methinks, were Paradise, complete.

A shady spot in some sequestered glade, And thou beside me brewing lemonade; That tinkles in a pitcher of cracked ice— That's what I call an August Paradise.

Truthful Things We Never Hear. "The birthday remembrance you sent me was not what I wanted at all. I have a half dozen of them already and am not very strong for that sort of thing. Doubtless you meant well, but you should have shown more originality."

"Your dinner party, in my opinion, was not much of a success. The cooking was poor and the place cards were the worst I ever saw. You also show too little discrimination in selecting your guests."

"Yes, Mrs. Jones, I heard you sing last night. Your voice is going back terribly. Your method is on the blink and as for your technique, you simply haven't any."

"No don't drop in any time. You bore me terribly."

"I wish you wouldn't keep calling me on the telephone all the time. I have something to do, my dear, beside listening to your tale of woe."

"No, I don't think you are making a bit of progress with your painting. You ought to be carrying a hod."

The Knot Hole Fan. You can talk about your aged oaken bucket, That mossy one that dangled in the well; The old farm house you used to love so dearly. The daisies that grew in the bosky dell.

But there's one other spot that we can mention, For which our love was mightily intense; It lingers in our memory forever— That little old round knothole in the fence.

How well do we remember all the players Who took part in the Doodle Center game. The battin' record of this mighty ball team Would make the class A league look pretty tame. We witnessed every contest of the season Without the slightest sort of an expense; And to our good old friend we'll ever be grateful, Our little old round knothole in the fence.

We saw all the stars that graced the contest. And then you saw another kind, to boot. When'er the copper with a shingle found us And we had not time to take a scout. How many times we've eaten from the mantel. But did it with a joy that was immense. Because we had enjoyed up to the limit. That little old round knothole in the fence.

FIVE YEAR OLD BOY KILLED BY AN AUTO

LITTLE GILBERT RUBIN DIES FROM INJURIES SUSTAINED THIS MORNING.

RAN IN FRONT OF CAR

Driven by Miss Katherine Jeffris While Returning From Errand for Mother.

This morning, shortly after eleven, occurred the first fatal automobile accident in Janesville this year, when little Gilbert Rubin was run down and his skull so badly crushed that he died a few moments later, while crossing Milwaukee street, just above Jackson street.

Hastening home from the Wilbur grocery store, where he had been sent by his mother on an errand, Gilbert Rubin, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rubin, trotted across the street to the Grubb flats where he lived with his parents, his arms full of the bundle he had been sent to purchase and directly in front of an auto driven by Miss Katherine Jeffris.

Never heeding the warning called to him by George Bressee, who saw the child's danger, the little chap was struck by the auto and knocked down, one wheel passing over his head and crushing his tiny skull, so that he breathed his last a few moments later in the office of Dr. Nuzum where he had been quickly hurried.

The accident occurred shortly after eleven o'clock, almost in front of the Hugh M. Joyce shop on West Milwaukee street. Miss Jeffris was driving her car at a rate of speed not to exceed six to eight miles an hour, Miss Marion Weirick and Miss Margaret Allen being her guests. Little Gilbert ran directly in front of the car and apparently did not look to right or left, being intent on the bundle he was carrying which his mother had sent him for.

George Bressee and others, who witnessed the accident, saw the child in the path of the car, shouted warnings, but all too late, and before Miss Jeffris could apply the emergency brake the tiny little fellow had been struck and run down. Miss Jeffris cannot be blamed for the accident, which was unavoidable.

The auto was stopped immediately and the injured child taken to the Reliable drug store where Dr. Nuzum was summoned, but he breathed his last a few seconds later. Even before the car struck the Rubin boy Miss Jeffris had applied the brakes and the car was stopped within a few feet, the machine was under control.

Mrs. Rubin, the mother, is prostrated with grief and in the charge of a physician. Little Gilbert was the only child and the idol of his parents, a handsome, chubby little fellow liked by all who knew him. So intent was he on the bundle he had been entrusted with he failed to see the auto, or heed the warnings of those who called to him.

Miss Jeffris, while entirely free from all blame for the sad accident, is on the verge of nervous prostration. She was taken to the Merchants and Savin's bank, where her brother, Kenneth Jeffris, hastened to her home, suffering intensely from the nervous shock she had sustained. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jeffris, are in the east.

MISS ANNIE NEITZEL WEDDED WEDNESDAY

Was United in Marriage Wednesday Afternoon to Paul A. Kerl at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Miss Annie Minna Neitzel and Paul Kerl, both of this city, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon at St. Paul's Lutheran church. The wedding service was performed by the Rev. C. J. Koerner in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends of the contracting parties. Miss Louisa Neitzel, a sister, and Miss Alma Neitzel, a cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaids. The groom was attended by his brothers, George and Henry Kerl. A wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on South Academy street. Mr. and Mrs. Kerl will reside in a house newly built by the groom on Washington avenue.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Given Birthday Shower: Mrs. L. L. Hart, formerly of Le Prairie, but now of Janesville, was given a post card shower at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Yeomans, yesterday, it being her eighty-second birthday. She received fifty in the first mail and more later. She was also presented with a birthday cake by her granddaughter, Mrs. Culver.

Bridge Progress: Cement sidewalk has been completed on the three westernmost spans of the Fourth Avenue bridge, which is half its length. Men are still at work extending the Fourth Avenue storm sewer through the east abutment.

Scouts Meet Tomorrow: There will be a meeting of the Boy Scouts at the Spanish War Veterans' hall tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. Various matters in connection with the scoutmaster's report will be taken up with the boys at this time.

Motor Patrol: Three parties of motorists were registered yesterday and last night at the Grand hotel. They were: Mrs. A. Stinson, the Misses J. and C. Mainland and H. A. Van Denmark of Racine; C. W. Mixer and F. Snovay, Moline; and W. T. Flynn of Chicago. Guests in automobiles at the Hotel Myers included: Mr. and Mrs. Schweyer, Mr. and Mrs. Woods, and Mrs. Mathews of Chicago.

Official Journal Published: The Official Journal, containing the proceedings of the City Council for the month of July is now off the press and ready for distribution. The Journal also contains a list and summary of the receipts and expenditures in the various funds during the month of July.

CONSIDER IMPROVING APPROACH TO BRIDGE

Council Desires Straight Approach From Franklin Street to Fourth Avenue Structure.

Improvement of the approach to the Fourth Avenue bridge from Franklin street, through the purchase by the city of the lot on which now stands an old warehouse has been under advisement by the City Council for some time, although no definite action has been taken. The improvement is one very much to be desired. Heretofore all vehicles that crossed the bridge from Franklin Street have had to pass around this building which stands directly in the line of the bridge. This greatly inconveniences travel and makes it dangerous as well. Race street is the only approach from Franklin street between Wall street and the viaduct, and although it is supposed to be of full width it has been narrowed somewhat by the railway embankment. North Main street is narrow, encumbered by two railway tracks for most of its length and little traveled. It is plain that to secure the most direct and safe approach across the new bridge will pass over Franklin and Race streets and that Race street must eventually be straightened.

The property which the city would like to acquire is owned by the Janesville Realty company. No options have yet been asked or given, but if a reasonable price is placed on it, the city will endeavor to obtain it as early as possible. The city may tender the ground now used for a street in exchange. Even if a selling price could now be agreed upon, provision for payment would have to be made in the next city budget.

HUNTING LICENSES TO LOCAL NIMRODS

Blanks Received by County Clerk Today and Twenty-five Permits Issued.

Hunting license blanks were received from the state department by the county clerk today and twenty-five licenses were issued. The first license was issued to Lawrence Nelson, 202 Glen street.

Some 3,000 blanks were received but it is not probable that the entire number will be filled out. They were accompanied by a ruling which has recently been made by the attorney general to the effect that there shall be no age limit in issuing the licenses. Last year no licenses were permitted to persons under fifteen years of age. It is probable, however, that licenses to boys under ten years will be denied should there be application by such.

The money received from the licenses which amounts to several thousand dollars yearly from this county is returned to the state.

PLAN CARNIVAL FOR PLAYGROUNDS FUND

Young People of First Ward to Give Show Similar to That Held in the Third Ward.

Similar to the Greater Third Ward Carnival given by young people of the third ward recently, a number of young people of the first ward are planning to open a carnival in that ward on Monday next, continuing the show through Wednesday. Tents for the carnival will be put on a lot of the Palmer property on Madison street near West Bluff street and a number of acts are being arranged for. Maurice Russell and Everett Harper are in charge of the management of show. The funds secured in this manner will be turned into a playground fund, the nucleus for which was established by the young people of the third ward.

PROF. R. M. VAUGHAN GIVEN A PROMOTION TO NEW POSITION

Former Pastor of the Baptist Church Made Full Professor at Newton Theological Institute Near Boston.

In the issue of the Standard for August 18th, the official paper of the Baptist church, the following item relative to the appointment of Prof. R. M. Vaughan, former pastor of the Janesville Baptist church, to a full professorship in the Newton Theological Institute, near Boston, will be read with interest by his many friends in this city. The article referred to is as follows:

The trustees of the Newton Theological Institute, at a special meeting on Aug. 6 unanimously elected Rev. Richard M. Vaughan of Berkeley, Cal., to the chair of Christian Theology in the seminary.

Prof. Vaughan was born in Bangor, Wis., Aug. 28, 1870. His father was a well known Wisconsin minister. Young Vaughan prepared for college at Wayland Academy, Wisconsin, and entered Brown University in 1891, graduating in 1895. He had a distinguished career in college winning Phi Beta Kappa in his junior year. At graduation he took first philosophical prize and one of the Carpenter prizes awarded to the two men in the class which stand highest in scholarship and character. He entered the Divinity School of the University of Chicago in 1895, but subsequently pursued post graduate studies at the University of Chicago for nearly two years, specializing in theology and New Testament.

For seven years from 1901, Mr. Vaughan was pastor of the Baptist church in Janesville, Wis. one of our strong churches where he did splendid service. In 1908, Mr. Vaughan became dean of the Pacific Coast Theological Seminary at Berkeley, Cal., serving for a year during the absence of the president. A unanimous petition of the student body requested him to remain, but the call of the local situation was too imperative. Two weak Baptist churches had united in this university town, the seat of the University of California, a leader was needed. Mr. Vaughan became pastor of this new church and has succeeded in building it up so that it is one of our strong churches on the coast.

Mr. Vaughan was elected as professor of theology at the Hamilton Theological Seminary (Colgate University) as successor of the late Prof. William N. Clarke. He felt constrained, however, to decline this honor, one of the highest that could have come to him, considering the international reputation of Professor Clarke, because of his commitment to the church at Berkeley. For the last year and a half Mr. Vaughan in addition to his church work has taught four hours a week at the Pacific Seminary (Congregational) at Berkeley. He has been thoroughly successful in the Berkeley church, which is a university church, attended by the many professors of the University of California, and as a teacher in the two seminaries closely affiliated with the great University of California, he has held his own with the best of men. In taking this chair at Newton, Mr. Vaughan comes to a position of superb influence. And there is every reason to believe his training and experience as a pastor and teacher and his personal qualities will enable him to occupy this post with every increasing power.

Siamese Clothes.

In Siam both men and women wear the "panung," which is described as a piece of silk or cotton cloth wound round the hips, the slack being rolled up, passed between the legs and hitched up behind in such a way as to give the appearance of a pair of loose knickerbockers. For waist coverings the women wear jackets or blouses and the men wear coats.

Mere Matter of Choice.

"Marie," asked the star of her maid, gazing perplexedly at her reflection in the mirror, "what was I about to do—step into the bathtub or go on the stage?" Marie shrugged her shoulders. "How can I tell? Mademoiselle is dressed for either."—Judge.

Courtesy.

The knowledge of courtesy and good manners is a very necessary study. It is, like grace and beauty, that which begets liking and an inclination to love one another at the first sight, and in the very beginning of acquaintance; and, consequently, that which first opens the door and intrmits us to instruct ourselves by the examples of others, and to give examples ourselves. If we have any worth taking notice of and communicating, "Ceremony of Interview," Montaigne.

Bank's Replace English Saloons.

We are abolishing public houses, but we are increasing banks. A writer has put a question as to the number of banks between the Euston road and St. Albans, and on the south side between the Elephant and Croydon. Half a century ago there was not one. It was London and Westminster that first set up a bank for the small man. And now you can hardly pass a street corner without the appeal of the bank. The change of the street corner site is suggestive of other changes.—London Chronicle.

SAYS HEARTBREAKER HAS LONDON RECORD

Miss Nellie Ingal, Chicago heiress, and Thomas Bayley Henry.

That Thomas Bayley Henry, alleged swindler and heartbreaker is Joseph Harold Fendall, who has served time in prisons in England, is the information received by Oakland police. Henry is said to have posed as an English barometer and son of a prominent family when he was arrested in London in 1905 on a charge of grand larceny. Henry was then an iron monger. The charge against him on the coast is fraud on real estate deals. Miss Nellie Ingal, Chicago heiress, gave him an affectionate farewell when police took him away.

"This thing of having a fortune and getting fun out of spending your money is not what it is cracked up to be," says Simon D. Paddock, known as the "millionaire kid" since he inherited a fortune from his uncle, Simon D. Paddock. He formerly was a chauffeur, and could speed without getting arrested. He has received love letters from some 500, all of whom think he is just the kind of husband they always have dreamed of.

WHO IS THIS?

By Rev. Pauley E. Zartmann, D.D.,
Secretary of Extension Department Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—And when he was come into Jerusalem, all the city was stirred, saying, Who is this?—Matt. 21:10.

Jesus Christ had not been long at his work on earth until people began to ask questions about him and that of the text occurred in the midst of a great scene. It was asked amid the enthusiasm, excitement, and intensities of the first Palm Sunday when Jesus and a number of those who believed on him were coming to Jerusalem for the feast. The multitudes spread their garments in the way; others cut down branches from the trees and strewed them in the way; and the multitudes that went before and that followed cried, saying, Hosanna to the son of David; blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest. The throng moved near the city gates and passed into the city. This caused great excitement and all the city was moved, saying, "Who is this?"

In the days of his flesh Christ caused people to think and talk about him, and his influence is ever the same. It is still true that he cannot be hid and the question of the first Palm Sunday is an everlasting question, and there is a profound sense in which you and I are called upon to study Jesus, to understand his works, to interpret his life and to decide for ourselves who he is.

There are some interesting answers to the question. Some call him the great teacher and refer to the sermon on the mount, the parables, and the extracts of some of his public addresses. Some say he was a marvelous miracle worker; and that is true. He opened blind eyes, unstopped deaf ears, healed withered hands, allayed burning fevers, and brought the dead back to life; and all of these are parables of the power with which he works in the spiritual world. Some call him the sympathetic friend, and we remember his tender dealing with the woman taken in her sin, his solicitude and helpfulness in the case of the widow at Nain, and his affection for the friends in the home at Bethany; and it is still true "There's not a friend like the lowly Jesus." Some call him the matchless man, referring to the beauty of his character, the purity of his life, the universal character of his teaching and his world-wide outlook. Some speak of him as the mighty Savior, and tell, with glowing heart, of his power to save; and still he is able to save unto the uttermost. Some recall the prophecy spoken by Isaiah and say he is the wonderful, and that this characteristic applies to all the other names.

In the first and second chapters of the Epistle to the Hebrews Christ is set forth as the perfect son of God and the perfect man and there is given a seven-fold proof of each. In chapter one we find that God hath in these last days spoken unto us by his son, he has become heir to all things, he made all things, he is the effulgence of God's glory, the express image of his person, he upholds all things by the word of his power, and when he had by himself purged our sins he sat down on the right hand of the majesty on high. In chapter two we find that he is a perfect man, but was made a little lower than the angels, he took man's nature, he endured man's temptation, he tasted man's death, he met man's foe and destroyed him, he wrought out man's salvation, and achieved man's victory. Without doubt he is the one perfect man.

"No mortal can with him compare,
Among the sons of men;
Fairer is he than all the fair,
Who fill the heavenly train."

And let us not forget that all that may be said of him, and all that is true of him as a man is but a faint gleam of the glory which is his as the divine son of God.

The world's greatest mountain is Calvary, the little hill outside the city gates where Christ was crucified to save us all. Here we can see God's love for the sinner and the sinner's opportunity. Let that cross be the great answer to the question of the text.

Who is this? This is Jesus of Nazareth. You have seen him; you have heard him; you know the redemption which he wrought. What will you do with Jesus? Your joy for time and your destiny for eternity depend on your answer. I plead with you to make your eternal decision now; to join the innumerable throng which acclaims him as Lord of the heart, and king of the life, and which says:

"I could not do without Thee,
O Savior of the lost;
Whose precious blood redeems me,
At such tremendous cost."

A prayerful hearing of the sermon is as important as its prayerful preparation.

They Go Together.

If God writes "opportunity" on one side of open doors, he writes "responsibility" on the other side.—Gracey.

The Ruler's Daughter. Mark v:21-43. Golden Text—And he took the damsel by the hand and said unto her, Talitha cumi, which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee arise. Mark v:41.

(1) Verse 21—What were the attractions in Jesus which drew the multitude to him?

(2) Verse 22—When a great man is in trouble does he crave help and sympathy the same as common people? Give your reasons.

(3) Verse 23—When our little children are sick and likely to pass into a land of conscious bliss how ought our feelings to be affected? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(4) Most of the rulers of the Jews were antagonistic to Jesus. Is it possible that Jesus would have been but for his trouble, and in any event what is the general influence of a great sorrow upon a man's trust in Jesus?

(5) Is such confident faith that Jesus had natural or supernatural, and why?

(6) Verse 24—Jesus in those days responded to every call for help. What reason have we to know that he is now equally responsive to every call?

(7) When we are in trouble what do we need to do to get adequate help from God?

(8) Verses 25-28—What is the best thing for a woman who is afflicted with a chronic disease to do?

(9) Did this woman have true faith or was her faith mixed with superstition? Give your reasons.

(10) Many truly good people who trust in God are also full of superstition. What effect does this weakness have upon God's dealings with them?

(11) May sick people today have the same simple faith for bodily healing that this woman had and be healed? Give your reason.

(12) Verses 29-34—Was it the mere touch of Jesus' garment that healed her or conscious effort on the part of Jesus? Why?

(13) Was there, or not, and why, any more virtue in Jesus' garment in itself than in that of any other man?

(14) How did Jesus know, with so many people jostling him, of the particular touch of this woman?

(15) What is the ground for the belief that God is aware of every thought, word and act of every individual?

(16) When we open up our hearts to God and make him our confidential friend what are always the results?

(17) Verses 35-36—When matters are as black as night and our troubles seem beyond remedy why is it still safe to be of good courage and to have faith?

(18) Verse 37—Why is it that there are only certain persons we can work with effectually, while others, equally good people, are a hindrance to us?

(19) Verses 38-43—What can you say for or against profuse weeping and elaborate mourning emblems at the funerals of Christians?

HERE'S CHIC FROCK THAT COSTS LITTLE

This is a chic frock developed in violet blue French faille. Bands of silk embroidery are placed down in front of the skirt. Over the shoulders these bands are edged with ecru net frills to form collar. Rose crystal buttons lend a smart touch of color to the frock. The skirt is laid in plaits at the front and back.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

THE TEMPER.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

THE temper is a small, explosive device which people carry around with them in order to make life a burden for those who haven't any. It is a pleasing combination of nitroglycerine and profanity, and has a high explosive force which can be ignited at any hour of the day or night without waiting to get up steam.

The temper is useful in many ways. It is particularly handy to have around during the progress of a political argument, and when skillfully introduced and followed up by a short-arm jolt to the jaw will render a stubborn debater speechless for some little time.

A man with a high temper and good control of a right uppercut can cause an opponent with nothing but the facts on his side to change his views on any subject from the value of soy beans as a breakfast food to the purity of Taft nomination.

There is a good deal of two-listed temper used in the home circle from time to time. It is especially prevalent on wash day and causes thousands of hollow-eyed husbands to consort nervously with the lunch counter.

There are two kinds of temper—quick and slow. Quick tempers come equipped with a hair-trigger and are liable to explode under gentle pressure on a pet corn or on being fed into an upper berth. A slow temper is a smoldering variety which will go along for years without having an eruption, and then it will think of something that happened way back in 1885 and commit justifiable homicide with a hoe handle.

The best way to cure temper in small children is to seize them firmly by the jugular vein and throw them across the parental knee in an inviting and expectant attitude, after which they should be spanked at high tension.

After a man has allowed his temper to run around without a halter or run strap for several years, it becomes a grouch and can hardly be told from injured depravity and original sin. This is the deadliest form of temper, and has slain more good impulses than any other form of human vice.

THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" Harold Bell Wright's novel, which holds the record for being the largest selling American work of fiction, has been made into a play by its author with the assistance of Elsbeth W. Reynolds. It will be given its first production in this city at the Myers Theatre Sunday August 25, matinee and evening.

The play is a story of the Ozark mountains and its people are all of that vicinity, which promises stage characters out of the ordinary. The production, which has been made by Messrs. Caspell and MacVitty, is said to be one of extreme beauty, this picturesque mountain country lending itself to the best in the scenic artists' art.

FETCHING FROCK OF BLACK SATIN

The collar of white voile is edged with plaited frills of same finished by a line of narrow black velvet ribbon. Similar frills finish the sleeves. The inset front panel of white voile on the skirt is laid in plaits at the front and back.

DINNER STORIES

The Rev. R. J. Campbell, apropos of his strictures on the morality of the modern business man, told a story to a Philadelphia reporter. "A commercial traveler," he said, "returned home from a long trip in the Far West and said anxiously to his wife at the railway station: 'How are the dear children?'"

"Splendid," she replied. "That is, they are all splendid but little Willie, and him I don't know what to make of. Instead of studying at school he spends his time making out of old spoons and such like rubbish worthless trifles which he sells to the other children for cakes and marbles. While his mates are at play he sits at home studying such as encyclopedias. He doesn't even sleep like other children. When I go up at night to see if he's all right I find him in his night gown quietly prying pennies out of his little brothers' and sisters' banks."

"The father filled with happy tears. 'Mary,' he said, as he clasped his wife to his breast, 'Mary, my dear, our own name is destined to immortality. I see clearly from your words that Willie will become a multimillionaire, founding libraries and art galleries, hospitals and universities all over America.'"

A yeggman imprisoned in the jail at Cleveland asked for something to read. The warden gave him a magazine from a package left by a prisoner's old society. It happened to be a woman's magazine.

About an hour later the yeggman sent for the warden, showed him the magazine he had been reading, and asked what the name was.

"I can't find a single page in it that interests me," said the yeggman. "I don't care for this dope on fashion."

What I want is a little logic!"

The late Senator Frye of Maine was presiding in the senate. A big appropriation bill carrying $150,000,000 was on passage. As is usually the case, no senator took the trouble to vote when the ayes and nays were called for except the senator in charge of the bill.

He voted "aye." "The aye has it," announced Mr. Frye, "and the bill is passed."

Clinton, Aug. 16.—A small boy, a match, and a five gallon can of gasoline nearly caused the loss of a barn by fire at the home of F. B. Reeder on Main street yesterday afternoon.

Master Verdis Reeder, seeing a can of gasoline had just been delivered and placed in the barn and noting that some had spilled, thought he would touch a match to the place where it had been spilled. HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

One Way to Get a Thing Done

ONE way to get a thing done," says a modern philosopher, "is to do something else."

At first blush, this makes you blink your eyes a bit, and wonder if we are reading it aright. But when we start to think about it, we agree with it.

Were you ever trying to make a waist or a dress, or to trim a hat, and everything went wrong?

You cut the dress out with half of it on the right side of the goods and half on the wrong. Or you forgot to consider the "up and down" of the material. Or your thread insisted on knotting every few stitches. The harder you worked, the less you got done. And finally, you were almost in tears.

Or perhaps you were trying to write something, and the logic got all twisted and the right words wouldn't come.

Or maybe you were working for a trial balance and the harder you worked, the farther from the right result you got.

The way to get all these things done is to do something else. Put by your task, whatever it may be. Go do something pleasant if you can—play the piano, take a hand at tennis, go for a walk. But if too much work hedges you in for such pastimes, take up some other work. When you go back to the tasks that have fretted you, you'll do them easily. Some silent, psychological law has been at work, and all the kinks in your brain are straightened out.

In a larger way this applies to the matter of vacation. If you want to do satisfactorily the big work that is ahead of you next winter, go do something else now. Put the work, the problems, the worry out of your mind. Go off and do something entirely different. You'll come back ready to take hold of your business with vigor, with originality, with a clear, keen vision, a steady brain and a strong hand. But if you keep peering right away at it, worrying and fretting and getting more and more balled up, you will still be in the same bog next spring.

So it is quite true that one of the best ways to get a thing done is to go do something else. If you don't believe it try it. After a change, you will be decidedly surprised at the ease with which work that was bothering, perplexing and exhausting you, will be performed.

"The baby got thinner and thinner and I loved as if we were going to lose her. Finally the doctor said: 'No more talking—you've got to get a good cow for that child and give it the milk fresh from the cow.'"

"So I set out to buy a cow. 'I knew where there was a herd of the finest milk cows in the country around here, and I went to the man who owned 'em.'" baby," says I to him. "Doctor's order," says I. "The poor little thing's dying of starvation."

"Well, he thought a while. 'I don't want to sell any of those cows—they're all picked stock, and I know what every one of them can do,' says he finally."

"There's only one of them I MIGHT let go, and she gives the most and best milk of the lot; but that cow's made me more trouble than all the rest. She's a kind of boss" among the other cows—just like some women," he says. "Whatever she wants, she gets, and if she feels like kicking up the mischief she has all the rest of 'em in line. I believe I'd have peace if I got rid of her."

"But," says I, "as long as I'm buying a cow, can't I look them over and take my pick? I know a little something about cows, you see."

"After thinking some more, he said I could, the circumstances being such as they were."

"So I looked 'em all over—it was a big herd, too, and by-and-by I saw a cow lying down, chewing her cud, and as fine a specimen of cow as anybody would want to see in a lifetime. She was a beauty all right, and health just stuck out of her."

"There," says I, "that's my cow and here's your $65."

"Hm-m!" says the man, "that's her."

"And sure enough, I'd picked the very cow that he'd been talking about."

"That man wasn't any liar, either," added grandpa. "She was a good cow clear through, and she seemed to take a special interest in our baby, because she began to pick up on her milk right away. But nowadays she does things different. The doctor writes out a prescription and you send it to a milk laboratory and they make up something that you pay for accordi-

When you count it up I guess it costs more'n buying a cow and paying for her keep."

THE KITCHEN CABINET

LOVE is not getting, but giving, not a wild dream of pleasure, and a madness of desire—oh, no, love is not that—it is goodness and honor, and peace and pure living—yes, love is that, and is the best thing in the world, and the thing that lives longest.

—Henry Van Dyke.

SOME LUNCHEON DISHES.

These dishes are suitable for either luncheon or supper:

When there are bits of leftover chicken (not enough for a meal) prepare it by cutting it in small pieces, add to a white sauce and a cupful of tender cooked celery. Serve on rounds of buttered toast.

When there are a few slices of cold roast pork left from dinner, chop and mix with equal parts of celery, add dressing and serve on lettuce leaves. Veal and lamb are equally good served in this way.

Milk toast is a most delicious dish for supper. Prepare the toast not later than five minutes before serving; dry it in the oven until hot, then toast a golden brown; dip the edges into hot water to soften, spread generously with butter and pour over a white sauce made of two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour cooked together and a cup of thin cream or rich milk added. Two cups will be needed for a large dish of toast. A little grated cheese or pronounced flavor grated over the dish just before serving adds to it.

Bits of bacon left from breakfast added to a white sauce and served with poached eggs is a change that is quite acceptable from the everyday poached eggs.

The old-fashioned codfish served in a good white sauce with steamed or baked potatoes is a dish which most enjoy.

If one has a little cold boiled ham chop it and add it to a thick white sauce, which may be used to cover broiled chops; then fry in deep fat and serve piping hot. The chop will need to be treated to egg and crumbs, as are croquettes.

Fish chowder is another dish which may be served at almost any meal except breakfast.

Hash served in mounds with a poached egg on each is a nice way to serve both of these common dishes.

Potatoes scalloped and seasoned with cheese or mixed with hard cooked eggs varies that time-honored dish. The addition of a few fresh mushrooms is relished by most.

Nellie Maxwell.

Day of the Whip.

The dreaded "cat" is probably the best known of old naval punishments. Whipping was provided for at least as long ago as the fifteenth century, and in Drake's time the regular trouncing of the ship's boys by the boatswain on Monday morning was regarded as the only means of insuring a fair wind for the rest of the week.

Cheap Cleaner.

A bicycle pump is a good substitute for a vacuum cleaner in getting dust from nooks and crannies in marble statuary, plaster casts, carved furniture or any crevices where it may lurk in spite of dust cloth and brush. Run the open end of the rubber tubing over the surface to be dusted, while working the pump vigorously with the foot. A soft dust cloth will do the rest.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a girl of eighteen and have a good home. I've been going with a young man for a year and a half and I love him, and know that my love is reciprocated.

He could not get a position in my home town and claimed he could not marry me and make a home in his present condition because when he marries he does not want me to work and help him. I have never worked hard and am now staying home for a year. He asked me to wait for him. My parents told me to do as I please as they think a great deal of him. I told him I would wait as long as patience lets me. He told me if I could get as good a man or better than him I should take the chance, but if he comes back and finds I married one not as good as he, I'll regret it.

I don't get any mail from him. He claimed he wouldn't write because it will make him lonesome so he will have to come back, which he does not want to do until he succeeds. Is he doing right?

A BROKEN HEART. The man is doing right not to marry you when he cannot support a wife.

If you really love him you will not want to marry anybody else. He seems to be a very conscientious young man.

Do not try to communicate with him since he does not wish it. He probably expects you to keep in touch with him through the friends he writes to.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I have been told I am beautiful and it seems my lot is to be sought by married men. It is plainly a disgrace. I want to live without sin or blemish. The other evening I called on some friends and the husband accompanied me home. It was dark and at the gate a cat jumped from the fence, frightening me. I started, and my companion caught me in his arms and kissed me. I was horrified and could not keep the tears back. He apologized profusely and told me he couldn't help it, saying that "my beauty and sweetness were to blame." Dear Mrs. Thompson, tell me what to do, for I am heart-sick.

There is only one thing to do, and that is to keep away from this man and all others of his kind, even if it keeps you from visiting a dear friend. Invite the friend to visit you alone.

Your beauty is a gift from God and should be held something sacred. Keep it for an honest man who really loves you and wants you for his wife.

MARY. Take the matter before the domestic relations court.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been engaged to a young man for three years. We were to be married very soon. Recently he became too familiar with me and I called him for it. He refuses to have anything to do with me. I am sorry, for I love him dearly. Do you think I have done wrong?

POOR little girl. Sometimes it happens that we must "call" even those we love dearest.

Unless you were foolishly prudish, you did right, and if he wants nothing to do with you it's a sure sign that he doesn't love you enough to respect you. If he comes to you sincerely sorry, you might forgive him; otherwise, try to interest yourself in somebody else.

Even in new houses where hardwood floors are fresh and clean some of the rooms will look better stained. For a parquet floor there is no better finish than to first fill with a coat of white shellac and then apply wax evenly with a cloth. Let the wax remain on several hours before rubbing down to a high polish with the weighted brush that comes for this purpose. With this simple finish the floors are easily kept bright by being rubbed with the weight once a week and being dusted daily with an ordinary broom over which a woolen cloth is tied.

Old floors may be stained to match the rugs so easily that one wonders why it is not often done. Purchase a package of dye the tint you want your floor, or you can get seal brown, which will resemble walnut when done or light brown, which gives a handsome shade. Dissolve in boiling water as directed on the envelope and apply with a scrubbing or a white-wash brush. When perfectly dry this may be varnished. This finish may also be used on home-made furniture and on woodwork that has never been painted.

Very often stains made at home are more satisfactory than those already mixed; a pound of dry color costs in the neighborhood of ten cents, and this mixed with two quarts of turpentine will give beautiful stains of any desired color. Burnt sienna mixed with turpentine and applied to the floors with a coarse brush and then wiped off with a rag before it is entirely dry gives a beautiful mahogany stain, and the grain of the wood shows through beautifully.

Raw sienna also gives a transparent stain with a fine sunny yellow or orange effect, according to how much turpentine is used to dilute it with. It is a good color for halls, as it does not show the print of dust so plainly as darker stains do.

Prussian blue is a powerful stain with great possibilities. Two or three tablespoonfuls of the dry color will be sufficient for a half gallon of turpentine. On a yellow pine floor it gives green and blue shades that blend with blue hangings.

To keep a fine gloss on varnished floors do not wash with soap-suds, but sprinkle with dairy salt or coarse salt. Allow it to remain on five minutes and then sweep off with a soft broom.

When you must wash painted or varnished floors, put a little kerosene in the water. This will give a gloss.

An oil mop may be made at home. Twenty cents' worth of paraffine oil and a new cotton mop well saturated in the oil is all you need and it will not need saturating again for six months. But it must not be used for any other purpose than rubbing the previously cleaned floors.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN, Food Specialist

PERSONAL TESTIMONY OF DR. ALLEN.

The most incompatible food mixtures are those including flesh, which is digested principally in the stomach, with acid fruits and vegetables, like apples, tomatoes, lettuce and cabbage, which are digested almost entirely in the intestines in one-fourth of the time, without the gastric secretion; and the most important improvement that can be made in the average man's diet is the entire exclusion of flesh. I have mentioned many cases in support of this, and I will take the liberty now of mentioning my own. For nearly ten years I have eaten no flesh meat, and during this time I have done better work, physically and mentally, than before. I have frequently walked from 25 to 35 miles a day without any bad effects. During the past 12 weeks I have seldom eaten anything but about a pound of unpolished rice with raisins and less than a quart of milk per day, and I pass as perfectly healthy and active to an extraordinary degree. During the past winter, when the thermometer registered the unusual temperature of ten below zero, I slept in a room without fire, and have worn only a raincoat for additional protection from the severest weather.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Gould

The furniture polishing cloths may be made at home, too, in this way. Mix out of doors, one quart of gasoline, one-half pint of turpentine, one-half pound of whiting and one-half ounce of oxalic acid. Shake the mixture well and then soak woolen cloths in it and hang out of doors until they are dry.

Kitchen floors should never be covered with a carpet for dozens of reasons that all good housekeepers know. Linoleum is an ideal covering. If it is out of the question several coats of good inside paint will be found next best. Strips of carpet and rag rugs prevent the paint wearing off and soften the uncovered floor to tired feet.

The old-fashioned braided rug was a really handsome adjunct to kitchen floors. Sometimes one is seen on the porch or in the bedroom of an old home, but it is like much old-fashioned handwork—too rare to be common.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

BY RUTH CAMERON

A QUEER POINT OF VIEW.

A GROUP of young girls whose ages ranged from fifteen to eighteen were discussing the kind of a man they wanted to marry.

Four out of the five declared for a man much older than themselves. Three of them wanted him to be five or ten years older; one wanted a man of at least fifty.

The mother of one of the girls was present, and she very heartily applauded this point of view. "Better be an old man's darling than a young man's slave," she quoted tritely.

Now, I can understand the point of view of the young people, but I simply cannot see how the older woman could have encouraged them in it.

I know that to the young girl there is something splendidly romantic in a man much older than herself.

I doubt if there was ever a girl of sixteen or eighteen who did not desperately admire any man with iron-gray hair, and wavy romances of which the hero was a dignified man of forty-five or fifty with gray hair and an impressive manner; but the mature woman who will seriously encourage a girl to entertain such ideas I cannot understand.

Undoubtedly there are marriages in which the man is ten or fifteen years older which turn out happily, just as there are successful marriages in which the disparity is in the opposite direction. But to consider a disparity in either direction as an advantage seems to me very shortsighted.

I wish the woman who is always urging upon her girls the advantage of a much older man as a mate would stop, think, and consider. Suppose she had a man of thirty-five or three, and, after a year of courtship, marries him. That means that for ten years before he had even met her he was a grown man. It means that while she was still a child he was living a decade of mature life. Consider, is that likely to produce ideal conditions?

Again, a decade of difference in age means a decade of difference in point of view. She is at the age of enthusiasm, he at the age of disillusionment; she is at the age that loves movement and excitement, he probably wants to settle down. And so, all along the line, their difference in age will probably mean a conflict in desires.

Again a man of thirty-five or forty is likely to be just a trifle "set" in his habits. Now, every truly successful marriage is a compromise of tastes and habits. A compromise which comes hard enough even when tastes and habits are pliant. But when they are fixed—well, I know of one couple of which the man was much the older, who inaugurated a life of discord by disagreeing the second night as to how much the bedroom window should be opened.

Perhaps I am a bit prejudiced, but I am sure I could ask nothing better for a daughter of my own than for her to marry a man who is, approximately, her mate in age as well as in other respects.

Professional Toastmasters. Probably the most exclusive and mysterious profession is that of the toastmaster at a banquet. It is not an all day job, but the function of the supreme man, who can dominate a babbling assembly, anxious for food, and hold them with "Pray, my lords, ladies and gentlemen, silence for grace by—" and the reverend gentleman gets up and bleats under the patronage of the toastmaster.—London Chronicle.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

I started in to save the nation along the old accustomed lines. "The country needs a reformation; that fact," I said, "before me shines. So I'll neglect my proper labors, and hunt around some campaign tracts, and go and bore my busy neighbors and fill them up with foolish facts." Then I went forth and had a plumber repair my lungs and larynx too, and stood around and talked all summer of rights that are the people's due. To vote for this or vote for that, I argued, is the only way in which the tired, downtrodden brother may bring a brighter, better day. I talked until the folks tumbled, and filled the air with verbal filth; I talked until the people mumbled: "Oh, what a chattering head he is!" I talked while others hoed and spaded and worked the roads or planted barns; a string of arguments paraded which were not worth as many durns. And now I let the other fellows pursue that nation-saving myth; I save the product of my bellows to cool my oatmeal porridge with. For well I know that no salvation will reach the horny-handed boys from those who try to save the nation by means of politics and noise. If men would better their condition, reduce the sum of grief and cares, they need but work with high ambition, and all they dream about is theirs.

Reaping and Sowing.
You reap what you sow—not something else, but that. An act of love makes the soul more loving. A deed of humbleness deepens humbleness. The thing reaped is the very thing sown, multiplied a hundred-fold. You have sown the seed of life, you reap life everlasting.—F. W. Robertson.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, August 16, 1872.—The Depot—Public Meeting Last Night.—The meeting last night for the consideration of locating a depot in the city was largely attended by the most substantial citizens.

An organization was effected by calling Hon. J. B. Doe to the chair and electing W. S. Bowne, secretary. The chairman stated that the object, and the matter was thoroughly discussed by Messrs. Sloan, Jackson, Hudson, Sutherland, Smith, Palmer and Eldredge. It was the opinion of all present that the subject was one of the first importance to the people of the city of Janesville, and that steps should be taken to relieve them from the inconvenience and dangers to which they have been subjected for years past. It was shown that the two railroad companies own nearly an entire block in the vicinity of the M. & St. P. freight house and that this property was purchased for the purpose of locating a new passenger depot upon it. There was no desire on the part of those present to fix upon any particular location for the proposed depot, except that it was their desire to have it built on the east side of the track, where it could be approached from the business portion of the city without crossing that track. The discussion showed an entire harmony of sentiment on the subject under discussion.

S. A. Hudson moved that a committee consisting of Messrs. James Sutherland, I. C. Sloan, and A. A. Jackson be appointed to confer with the railroad officials on the subject. Motion adopted.

Mr. Eldredge moved that the committee be instructed to earnestly object to the construction of a passenger depot on the old grounds and to insist that such depot be built south or east of the present tracks of the company. Motion adopted. On motion adjourned.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—But Father isn't supposed to know all about wedding marches.

He looked like a dead man. His face, the thin up, the lips parted under the fringe of a brown mustache, was a marble white, and showed a gray shadow in the cheek. The hair on his forehead, thawed by the heat, was lying in damp half-curved semi-circles, dark against the pallid skin. There was a ring on the hand that still hung limp on the floor. The doctor, muttering to himself, pulled open the shirt and was feeling the heart, when Perley, who had flown into the bar for more whisky, emerged, a glass in his hand. As his eye fell upon the man, he stopped, stared, and then exclaimed in loud-voiced amazement:

"My God—why, it's Dominick Ryan! Look here, Governor!" to Cannon, who was standing by his daughter in the parlor doorway, "come and see for yourself. If this ain't young Ryan I'm a Dutchman!"

"Cannon pushed between the intervening men and bent over the prostrate figure.

"That's who it is," he said, slowly and unemotionally. "It's Dominick Ryan, all right. Well, by ginger!" and he turned and looked at the amazed innkeeper, "that's the queerest thing I ever saw. What's brought him up here?"

Perley's glass snatched from him by the doctor who seemed entirely indifferent to their recognition of his patient, shrugged helplessly.

"Blest if I know," he said, staring aimlessly about him. "He was here last summer fishing. But there ain't no fishing now. God, ain't it a good thing that operator at Rocky Bar had the sense to telegraph up!"

CHAPTER V.

Nurse and Patient. When Dominick returned to consciousness he lay for a space looking directly in front of him, then moved his head and let his eyes sweep the walls. They were alien walls of white plaster, naked of all adornment. The light from a shaded lamp lay across one of them in a soft yet clear wash of yellow, so clear that he could see that the plaster was coarse.

There were few pieces of furniture in the room, and all new to him. A bureau of the old-fashioned marble-topped kind stood against the wall opposite. The lamp that cast the yellow light was on this bureau; its globe, a translucent gold reflection revealed in liquid clearness in the mirror just behind it. It was not his own room nor Berny's. He turned his head farther on the pillow very slowly, for he seemed sunk in an abyss of suffering and feebleness. On the table by the bed's head was another lamp, a folded newspaper shutting its light from his face, and here his eyes stopped.

A woman was sitting by the foot of the bed, her head bent as if reading. He stared at her with even more intentness than he had at the room. The glow of the lamp on the bureau was behind her—he saw her against it without color or detail, like a shadow thrown on a sheet. Her outlines were sharply defined against the illumined stretch of plaster—the arch of her head, which was broken by the coils of hair on top, her rather short neck, with some sort of collar binding it, the curve of her shoulders, rounded and broad, not the shoulders of a thin woman. He did not think she was his wife, but she might be, and he moved and said suddenly in a husky voice:

"What time is it?"

The woman started, laid her book down, and rose. She came forward and stood beside him, looking down the filaments of hair round her head blurring the sharpness of its outline.

He stared up at her, haggard and intent, and saw it was not his wife. It was a strange woman with a pleasant, smiling face. He felt immensely relieved and said with a hoarse carefulness of utterance:

"What time did you say it is?"

"A few minutes past five," she answered. "You've been asleep."

"Have I?" he said, gazing immov-

ably at her. "What day is it?"

"Thursday," she replied. "You came here last night from Rocky Bar. Perhaps you don't remember."

"Rocky Bar!" he repeated vaguely, groping through a haze of memory.

"Was it only yesterday? Was it only yesterday I left San Francisco?"

"I don't know when you left San Francisco," the newspaper cracked and bent a little, letting a band of light fall across the pillow. She leaned down, arranging it with careful hands, looking from the light to him to see if it were correctly adjusted.

"Whenever you left San Francisco," she said, "you got here last night. They brought you here, Perley and some other men in the sleigh. They found you in the road. You were half-frozen."

"What is this place?"

"Antelope," said the woman. "Perley's Hotel at Antelope."

"Oh, yes," he answered with an air of weary recollection. "I was going to walk there from Rocky Bar, but the snow came down too hard, and the wind—you could hardly stand against it! It was a terrible pull. Perley's Hotel at Antelope. Of course, I know all about it. I was here last summer for two weeks fishing."

She stretched out her hand for a glass, across the top of which a book rested. He followed the movement with a mute fixity.

"This is your medicine," she said, taking the book off the glass. "You were to take it at five but I didn't like to wake you."

She dipped a spoon into the glass and held it out to him. But the young man felt too ill to bother with medicine and, as the spoon touched his lips, he gave his head a slight jerk and the liquid was spilt on the counterpane. She looked at it for a rueful moment, then said, as if with gathering determination:

"But you must take it. I think perhaps I gave it wrong. I ought to have lifted you up. It's easier that way," and before he could answer she slipped her arm under his head and raised it, with the other hand setting the rim of the glass against his lips. He swallowed a mouthful and felt her arm sliding from behind his head. He had a hazy consciousness that a perfume came from her dress, and for the first time he wondered, who she was. Wondering thus, his eyes again followed her hand putting back the glass, and watched it, white in the gush of lamplight, carefully replacing the book. Then she turned toward him with the same slight, soft smile.

"Who are you?" he said, keeping his hollowed eyes hard on her.

"I'm Rose Cannon," she answered. "Rose Cannon from San Francisco."

"Oh, yes," with a movement of comprehension, the name striking a chord of memory. "Rose Cannon from San Francisco, daughter of Bill Cannon. Of course I know."

He turned his head away from her and said dully and without interest: "I thought it was some one else."

She bent down and said, speaking slowly and clearly as though to a child:

"The storm has broken the wires, but as soon as they are up, papa will send your mother word, so you needn't worry about that. But we don't either of us know your wife's address. If you could tell us—"

She stopped. He had begun to frown and then shut his eyes with an expression of weariness.

"That doesn't matter," he said. "Don't bother about it. Let her alone."

Again there was one of those pauses which seemed to him so long. He gave a sigh and moved restlessly, and she said:

"Are your feet very painful?"

"Yes, pretty bad," he answered. "What's the matter with them?"

"They were frost-bitten, one partly frozen."

"Oh—" he did not seem profoundly interested. It was as if they were some one else's feet, only they hurt violently enough to obtrude themselves upon his attention. "Thank you very much," he added. "I'll be all right to-morrow."

He felt very tired and heard, as in a dream, the rustle of her dress as she moved again. She said something about "supper" and "Mrs. Perley coming," and the dark, enveloping sense of stupor from which he had come to life closed on him again.

He looked like a dead man. Some time later on he emerged from it and saw another woman, stout and matronly, with sleekly parted hair, and an apron girt about her. He asked her, too, who she was, for the fear that he might wake and find his wife by his bedside mingled with the pain of his feet, to torment him and break the vast, dead restfulness of the torpor in which he lay.

It broke into gleams of interest and returning consciousness during the next two days. He experienced an acute sense of illness and pain, the burning anguish of his feet and fevered misery of his body, bitten through with cold, brought him back to a realization of his own identity. He heard the doctor murmuring in the corner of "threatened pneumonia" and understood that he was the object threatened. He began to know and separate the strange faces that seemed continually to be bending over him, asking him how he felt. There was the doctor, Perley, Bill Cannon, and the old judge and three different women, whom he had some difficulty in keeping from merging into one composite being who was sometimes "Miss Cannon," and sometimes "Mrs. Perley," and then again "Cora."

When on the fourth day the doctor told him that he thought he would "pull through" with no worse ailment than a frozen foot, he had regained enough of his original vigor and impatience under restraint to express a determination to rise and "go on." He was in pain, mental and physical, and the ministrations and attentions of the satellites that so persistently revolved round his bed rasped him into irritable moodiness.

The doctor laughed at his desire to "move on." The storm was still raging, and Antelope was as completely cut off from the rest of the world as if it were an uncharted island in the unknown reaches of the Pacific. The invalid up among his pillows, he drew back the curtain and let him look out through a frost-painted pane on a world all sweeping lines and skurrying eddies of white. The drifts curled crisp edges over the angles of roofs, like the lips of breaking waves. The glimpse of the little town that the window afforded showed it cowering under a snow blanket, almost lost to sight in its folds.

"Even if your feet were all right, you're tied here for two weeks anyway," said the doctor, dropping the curtain. "It's the biggest storm I ever saw, and there's an old timer that hangs round the bar who says it's as bad as the one that caught the Donner party in forty-six."

The next day it stopped and the world lay gleaming and still under a frosty crust.

That afternoon Dominick, clothed in an old bath-robe of the doctor's, his swathed feet hidden under a red rug drawn from Mrs. Perley's stores, was promoted to an easy chair by the window. The doctor, who had helped him dress, having disposed the rug over his knees and tucked a pillow behind his back, stood off and looked critically at the effect.

"I've got to have you look your best," he said, "and you've got to act your prettiest this afternoon. The young lady's coming in to take care of you while I go my rounds."

"Young lady!" exclaimed Dominick in a tone that indicated anything but pleasurable anticipation. "What young lady?"

"Our young lady," answered the doctor. "Miss Cannon, the Young Lady of Perley's Hotel. Don't you know, that's the nicest girl in the world? Maybe you don't, but that's because your powers of appreciation have been dormant for the last few days. The people here were most scared to death of her at first. They didn't know how she was going to get along, used to the finest, the way she's always been. But, bless your heart, she's less trouble than anybody in the place. There's twelve extra people eating here, besides you to be looked after, and Mrs. Perley and Cora are pretty near run to death trying to do it. Miss Cannon wanted to turn in and help them. They wouldn't have it, but they had to let her do her turn here taking care of you."

"It's very kind of her," said the invalid without enthusiasm. "I noticed her here several times."

"And as easy as an old shoe," said the doctor. "Just as nice to Perley's boy, who's a waif that the Perleys picked up in the streets of Stockton, as if he was the Prince of Wales. I tell you hereditary's a queer thing. How did old Bill Cannon come to have a girl like that? Of course there's the mother to take into account, but—"

A knock on the door interrupted him. To his cry of "Come in," Rose entered, a white shawl over her shoulders, a book in her hand. While she and Dominick were exchanging greetings, the doctor began thrusting his medicines into his bag, alleging the necessity of an immediate departure, as two cases of bronchitis and three of pneumonia awaited him.

"You didn't know there were that many people in Antelope," he said, as he snapped the clasp of the bag and picked up his hat. "Well, I'll swear to it, even if it does seem the precluded estimate of an old inhabitant. So long. I'll be back by five and I hope to hear a good report from the nurse."

The door closed behind him and Dominick and the young girl were left looking rather blankly at each other. He had a hunted, helpless feeling that he ought to talk to the young woman as gentlemen did who were not burdened by the pain of frozen feet and marital troubles. Moreover, he felt the annoyance of being thrust upon the care of a lady whom he hardly knew.

"I'm very sorry that they bothered you this way," he said awkwardly. "I—I don't think I need any one with me. I'm quite comfortable here by myself," and then he stopped, conscious of the ungraciousness of his words, and reddening uncomfortably.

"I dare say you don't want me here," said Rose with an air of meekness which had the effect of being assumed. "But you really have been too sick to be left alone. Besides, there's your medicine, you must take that regularly."

The invalid gave an indifferent cast of his eye toward the glass on the bureau, guarded by the familiar book and spoon. Then he looked back at her. She was regarding him deprecatingly.

"Couldn't I take it myself?" he said.

"I don't think I'd trust you," she answered.

His sunken glance was held by hers, and he saw, under the deprecation of her look, humor struggling to keep itself in seemly suppression. He was faintly surprised. There did not seem to him anything coming in the fact of her distrust. But as he looked at her he saw the humor rising past control. She dropped her eyes to hide it and bit her under lip. This did strike him as funny and a slow grin broke the melancholy of his face. She stole a stealthy look at him, her gravity vanished at the first glimpse of the grin, and she began to laugh, holding her head down and making the stifled, chuckling sounds of controlled mirth suddenly liberated. He was amused and a little puzzled and, with his grin more pronounced than before, said:

"What are you laughing at?"

She lifted her head and looked at him with eyes narrowed to slits, murmuring:

"You, trying to get rid of me and being so polite and helpless. It's too pathetic for words."

"If it's pathetic, why do you laugh?" he said, laughing himself, he did not know why.

She made no immediate reply and he looked at her, languidly interested and admiring. For the first time he realized that she was a pretty girl, with her glistening coils of blond hair and a pearl-white skin, just now suffused with pink.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

You will be annoyed and your patience severely tried but later good results will come from all the trouble. If you have affairs of other people to look after be extremely careful.

Those born today will be brilliant and active, but will lack the patience necessary for material success in life. They will succeed best when they follow the advice of some practical mind.
